S T A F F

The bond between Student Body and Staff made for a greater appreciation of school operations and functions. The high quality of our school was a team effort, student and staff as one. Abe Lincoln once said, "A House divided cannot stand!" Kekionga is the perfect example of this great man's words.

An efficient staff keeps

Mr. Lake has served his third year as principal here at Kekionga Junior High this past year. Before he was principal he held the same job Mr. Stebbe has now: assistant principal. Some of Mr. Lake's responsibilities are disciplinarian, administrator between staff and students, and keeping the school running smoothly. Mr. Lake must be the educational leader of the school he serves and must help all the students as much as possible. Mr. Lake says that his biggest responsibility is providing the best education possible for the students. He likes working directly with the students best, and he likes paperwork the least.

Mr. Lake, the Kekionga Warrior Chief and leader

Mr. Stebbe, our assistant principal, always keeps his cool.

Mr. Robert Stebbe, assistant Principal of Kekionga Junior High, is one of the busiest people in the school. He attends all the home sports events. Mr. Stebbe is in the entrance hall every morning to greet us as we come in, and at lunch time he is in the lunchroom supervising us. Then, after the school day is done, Mr. Stebbe makes sure we leave school without harm. Mr. Stebbe originally came to Kekionga as a developmental reading teacher. He then became a guidance counselor. Two years ago he was appointed assistant principal under Mr. Lake. He has been one of the people that has made Kekionga a successful school.

the tribe together

Mr. Innis works with understanding and compassion

Mr. Innis, one of the two guidance counselors, is in his third year here at Kekionga. Before coming here, he taught physical education at Harrison Hill Junior High, and at Seymour High. He also coached some of the various sports there. Mrs. Anderson, the second of the two counselors, taught at Elmhurst and Northrup before counseling at Kekionga. Both she and Mr. Innis work to keep the students, parents, and faculty happy. Among the busy workers in our school office are the three secretaries: Mrs. Goldman, Mrs. Hursh, and Mrs. Roof. They are constantly working to keep the office business coming and going at a steady pace.

Students learn from fine examples

Mrs. Young and Mrs. Swartz

This year Kekionga has acquired a new lunch clerk. Although Mrs. Young was here last year, Mrs. Swartz is new to the Warrior lunchroom. These two ladies monitor the lunchroom and are very dedicated to their work. Certain duties are required from these women such as keeping the lunchroom atmosphere orderly, peaceful, and pleasant. Kekionga will always be indebted and grateful to these ladies for their help to this school.

Mrs. Morgan, the matron

Essential parts of our staff are the janitors, the matron, and the cooks. The janitors not only keep the school clean, but also keep it in good working condition. They regulate the heat, replace lights, and help teachers and students with manual chores. The janitors must also keep the school grounds clean and trimmed. The matron assists the janitors in keeping the school clean.

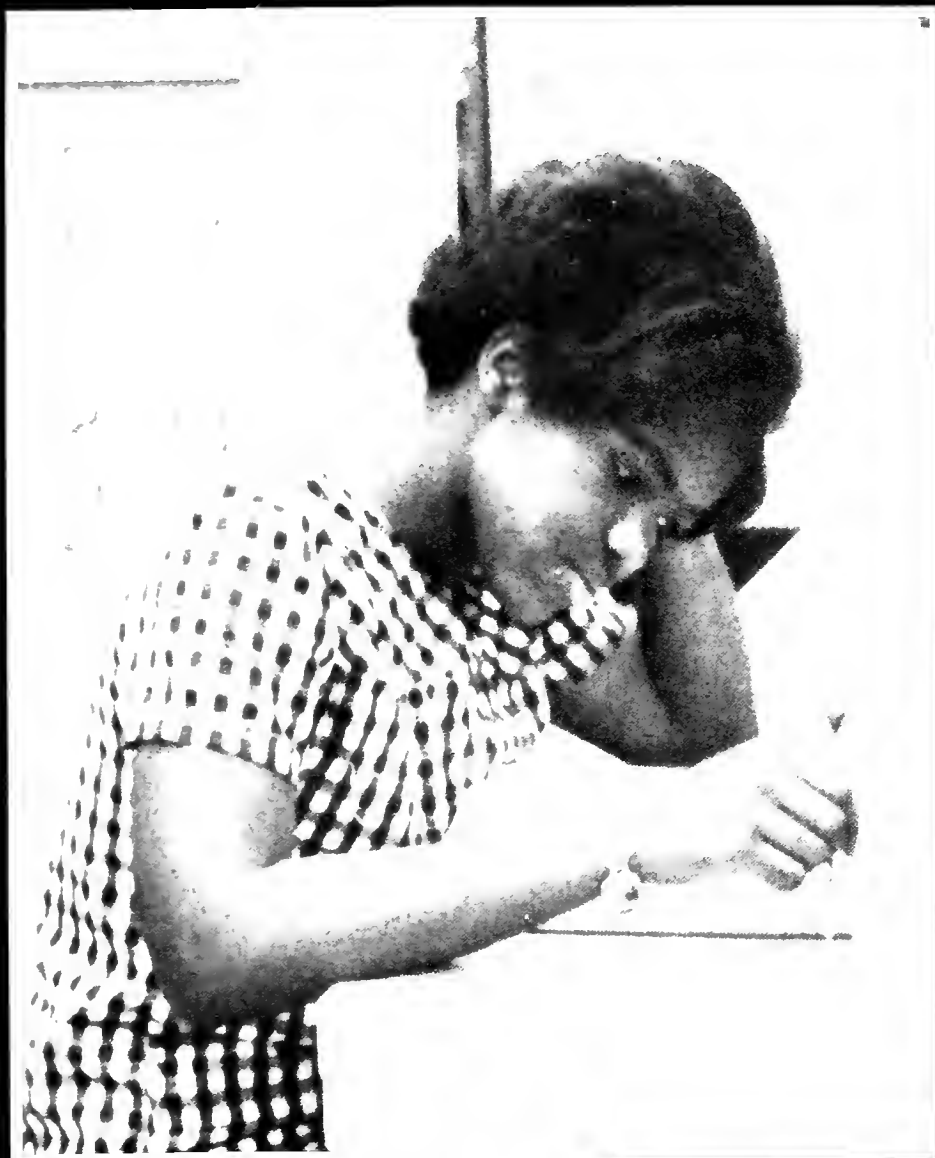

The cooks are another important part of our staff. The manager, Mrs. Dennis, receives the menus from the downtown office and she checks them to make sure there are enough vitamins in the diet. So, we not only get a delicious lunch, but a nourishing one too!

ACADEMICS

Preparations for the future is the goal of any school. The subjects given at Kekionga have made available a part of the information needed to get it together for a successful life. Many of the things taught in the fields of mathematics, science, English, and history will stay with the Warriors long into the future.

Social Studies classes learn about

In social studies, students study the lay of the land and their people. First they learn about the country and sometimes make maps of it. Next, warriors try to understand the customs of the people and the way they live in relation to others and their problems.

Eighth grade warriors study United States history. They learn how the past influences the present and the future.

Miss Butler's classes are always searching for new approaches in social studies.

This year the classes used two simulations: "Sunshine," which is race relations, and "Discovery", which is early colonization.

Miss Butler teaches seventh and eighth grade classes. They study the usual materials of past, present, future, and relationships between social studies and daily living.

Another program at Kekionga has been added for summer school students. It is a course in Old Fort Wayne history.

Students play the game of math by

There are five teachers at Kekionga that help students to a better understanding of math. They are Mr. Heckman, Mr. Dick, Mr. Drabenstott, Mr. Lowe, and Mrs. Roberts.

The ninth grade teachers teach two different types of algebra; fundamentals takes two years to acquire the knowledge that is gained in one year of the straight algebra class. The teachers have a big advantage this year over last in that they have the math lab. It helps to teach a practical and recreational aspects of math. As in the words of our math department head, Mr. Dick, "One of the more important areas that people should have a background in and probably the area that people are lacking in is math."

The study of life is one topic

This year Kekionga ninth grade students took both health and biology. Some of the subjects the health classes talked about were personality, mental health, drugs, and the last twelve weeks were spent in driver's training.

Biology goes through many subjects, but one of the most interesting of these subjects is dissection. Although it has always been associated with girls fainting, it is still the best method to show comparison of the different organisms. Both classes were fun and worth the effort to learn.

Combined classes in health provide a new experience.

Science is required in seventh and eighth grade. Students learn chemistry, mechanical advantage, and generalities about zoology and botany. Ninth graders cover zoology and botany in greater detail through biology or through biology special classes.

Students puzzle over ideas that

The wonders of literature and grammar are introduced to seventh graders by various educational, yet enjoyable ideas. Novels, such as JONATHAN GOES WEST, are read to point out the finer points of American writing. The poetic "jungles" are explored with the help of poetry notebooks, written by the students and discussed by the class. The English classes this year have learned about verbs, adverbs, nouns, pronouns, adjectives and helping verbs. They have learned about different types of phrases such as prepositional phrases. They have also done a lot of creative writing which appeals more to most of them. The English teachers at Kekionga are Miss Manth, Miss Strahm, Mr. Swinford, Mr. Hagan, Mrs. Miller, and Mrs. Kemppainen.

Ninth grade English classes experience a new method of teaching. Miss Strahm makes her classes interesting by using her own ideas instead of the textbook. To increase their creativity, the students become authors by writing short stories, ads, and commercials. They have spent a great deal of time on GREAT EXPECTATIONS.

Writing compositions is one of many assignments done in English.

Reading skills help seventh grade

Developmental Reading students increase their reading skills.

One of the required courses in the seventh grade is developmental reading. Developmental reading is individualized according to the specific person. Work in this class includes a series of SRA stories. After doing several of these stories, the student usually recognizes his improvement.

Mrs. Yates and Mrs. Miller teach developmental reading and they say that comprehension is stressed more than speed. Students work at their own pace, with the teacher always available for any problems that might arise. In developmental reading students also work on speed reading and comprehension. A unit is also taught on the newspaper and the stock exchange. The students can put this information to practical use in the future.

Service workers do various jobs for teachers.

A growing school like Kekionga needs a growing library, and Kekionga certainly has one. There are over ten thousand books, fiction, non-fiction, and plenty of reference books. Students may use the library before school, after school, between classes, and during study hall. Many students also go during English classes. The library is always a quiet, convenient, and clean place to study or simply read; and there are always teachers or librarians on hand to help with any kind of problem.

Almost everyone that service-works enjoys it. Service workers help teachers during their study halls. They run errands, take things to the office, grade papers, organize desks, and many other things that the teachers normally wouldn't get done. Almost every teacher in the school has one or more service workers.

The Spanish class gives the student the challenge of learning a new language through the instruction of Mr. Swinford. The class learns the customs and language of Spain in many ways. They study Spanish magazines and, of course, their Spanish textbook, LA FAMILIA FERNANDEZ.

Headphones are used to learn the pronunciation of Spanish words.

Spanish customs can be studied through the native dress.

Art students show creative talent

Seventh grade art students experience many fields of creativity with Miss Hills.

This year the art classes were very busy. Miss Hills was in charge of three ninth grade classes, three eighth grade classes, and also seventh graders. Some of the projects of the ninth grade were ceramics, weaving, painting, and creating valentines. The sixth period ninth graders spent weeks of hard work on the mobiles that were displayed in the cafeteria. The eighth grade also worked on various projects. Some of those projects were macrame, Ryarug, and balsa constructions. Most of their artwork was displayed in the art room. The seventh graders did paintings, abstract paintings, and stringlike burlap wall hangings.

Home Economics, headed by Mrs. Diehl and Miss Dietrich, is geared to teach girls in grades seven, eight, and nine the fundamentals of home economics. The seventh graders, who took home economics for one grading period, learned the importance of child care. Grooming and sewing were other topics covered by the seventh graders. A pillow was made by each girl. The girls learned to cook many different foods. They had the opportunity to taste what they had prepared.

In the eighth grade, the girls cooked meals and sewed two items. The girls also learned about nutrition and interior design.

Ninth grade girls learned about consumer education, did more sewing and cooking, and studied textiles.

Industrial arts was taught by Mr. Wolford and Mr. Graham. Seventh graders had nine weeks of shop, and the eighth grade took a year of industrial arts. Drafting consisted of rocketry and photography, rather than the usual drafting.

Putting good notes together create

Kekionga produced a great band this year under the instruction of Mr. Myers. They showed their school spirit through performing concerts and playing at basketball games.

Miss Reed, Mr. Myer's student teacher, was a great asset to the band. She accompanied the students on their NISBOVA contest entries. It was a two-way learning experience for Miss Reed and the band.

The concert band is made up of the ninth grade and the better players of the seventh and eighth grade. The ninth grade meets everyday, while the other members meet every other day.

The eighth grade choir is training for the freshman concert choir. Some of the eighth grade students, who are good enough, perform with the ninth grade choir during concerts.

The orchestra this year has made great progress. It has been on a new schedule. Every Tuesday one class period has been taken out for orchestra.

ACTIVITIES

Activity period, having been reinstated to seventh period, has become a time for students and teachers to get together and relate through various activities and projects in mutual interests in many different fields. Seventh period is a very rewarding experience for both students and teachers in better understanding and appreciating each other.

Art and Chess Clubs have busy year

Mrs. Kemppainen once again has sponsored the Art Club. The main purpose of the club is to let the students create things that they aren't able to do during regular art class. The members can use any of the materials available. Mrs. Kemppainen doesn't act as an instructor, but as an advisor. The members can work in groups or individually.

The Art Club looks over some of their work.

The Chess Club, under the watchful eye of Mr. Billian, concentrates on strategic moves.

Wyandotte members show acting skill

The members of Checkers Club in action

Mr. Young sponsored the Checkers Club. Although at first the game seems relatively simple, it demands skill and thought. But still the game is very entertaining. The members play for no other reason than for the enjoyment of the game. Several tournaments were held during the year. Mr. Young likes checkers better than chess because it's faster and more mathematical.

Miss Manth's Wyandottes Club is one of the more interesting activities. The group puts on plays and helps with other social events. Usually the club puts on two plays a year, one at Christmas and one at the end of the year. This year, however, the group was not able to put on a Christmas play. The spring play was entitled, "Genius, Jr.". There is more to these plays than what is seen on stage. Many hours are spent on scenery and production to bring out a good play. The indirect activities connected with Wyandotte were the Y-teens talent show and commemoration speeches at various holidays.

Library, Audio-Visual Clubs provide

Students participating in the Stamp and Coin Club have a lot more to do than just look through a magnifying glass. They take field trips and companies send stamps for the members to look at and buy. Films are also shown. Mr. Mathias, the club sponsor, says that he likes the historical aspect that ties in with the club.

Mr. Graham's Audio-Visual Club also doubles as a service club. The members learn about the audio visual equipment such as film projectors, film strips, tape recorders, and transparencies. The students then run the equipment for the teachers use it.

Interesting historical facts are found through studying old coins and stamps.

Mr. Graham says, "Projectors run better when you tell them you love them!!"

Kekionga with necessary services

Banking gives one a sense of self-satisfaction.

Among the various clubs and activities sponsored for the benefit of the Warrior student body, Banking and Library stand out as symbols of personal achievement. Some of the more than forty members of Banking Club have saved as much as $1,000 over a period of a few years. Under Mr. Lippe's supervision, members may save enough money to help pay for a future education, after their Warrior years. Library Club consists of students who help Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Hessert keep organization in our efficient library. These unsung heroes give up their free time to help around the library. Working around books, the members may learn of stimulating new interests to be used in the years ahead.

The variety of responsibilities ascribed to Library Club makes each day new and exciting.

Mr. Dick and Mr. Heckman shared the leadership of the math club.

A new addition to Kekionga this year is the math lab. This lab consists of mathematically challenging games such as the Tower of Hanoi, French Solitaire, Monopoly, Quibic, and Kismet.

The lab has books on probability, algebra, geometry, and many other subjects. The math club is sponsored by Mr. Dick and Mr. Heckman.

The club participated in a city-wide math contest which was held on March 22. In preparing for this contest the math club tried to find winning strategy in such games as Manacala and Tack-Tickle.

Math lab has successful first year

Student Council has done many things this year. Social functions such as the "Trucking Turkey" dance and the "Yearbook" dance are just a few of their many accomplishments. Such achievements as having concessions for basketball games, installing a football scoreboard, and putting up a student-run bulletin board have made Kekionga a better place to be.

The Student Council's "Trucking Turkey".

The Student Council has three separate ruling groups divided by grade. Each grade has its own president. A new governing body has been added to Student Council. This body, called the Board of Directors, supervises all of the council meetings. These directors are Gregg Heckley, Greg Nowak, Lori Rietdorf, and Marty Petit. Student Council is sponsored by Mr. Swinford.

Girls find added fulfillment

Girls participate in many activities at Kekionga. One of these is gymnastics. Gymnastics Club is held weekly by Miss Johnson, who is a competent coach. The girls concentrate on improving their skills in tumbling, uneven bars, balance beam, and other activities concerned with gymnastics.

Another activity that girls participate in is Y-teens, which is sponsored by Mrs. Diehl and Mrs. Anglemeyer. The girls plan and participate in activities helpful to society. Their activities included visits to the Allen County Nursing Home, the Day Care Center, and Johnny Appleseed School.

Miss Johnson coached Gymnastics Club.

through many clubs, activities

Home Economics Club was for all grades. In Home Economics Club girls did many different things. One of the first things they did was to sew. Some girls made slacks while others made skirts. Cooking also was fun. They cooked many foods and were privileged to eat what they prepared. One day the Home Economics Club had a party open to the teachers. The teachers really enjoyed this.

Girls' Ensemble is a group only for girls in seventh, eighth, and ninth grade. They get together songs to sing for concerts. Their voices blend together to get many beautiful sounds.

Home Economics Club have fun sewing, along with other things.

Navy Club makes first appearance

Mr. Cunningham's Navy Club is one of the many clubs that are new to Kekionga this year. Mr. Cunningham's experience in the navy has helped the activity greatly. The club is run like a navel ship. Officers were elected to their post.

Mr. Wolford sponsors one of the more unusual activities, the Judo Club. The members learn terminology and good sportmanship. The lesson starts with a warming-up session; then the students start the judo part of the lesson. This includes throwing, grappling, and choking techniques.

Mr. Wolford teaches the Judo Club a new throw.

Boys' Intramurals is energetic fun

Members of Boy's Intramurals display their skills

Boy's Intramurals is one of the oldest and most popular activities in the school. The activity is open to seventh, eighth, and ninth grade boys. The activity provides the boys of Kekionga a place to play, develop, and polish their techniques and skills in such sports as basketball, volleyball, gymnastics, and other sports that the participants can play on their own. The club is sponsored by Mr. Smith, Mr. White, and Mr. Schwartz, who act as advisors, not teachers. Their coaching and physical education background helps the activity tremendously.

Miss Strahm leads Publications

This year's newspaper publications, sponsored by Miss Strahm, was published by not only the staff members, but also Miss Strahm's fourth period ninth grade class. Working on the ARROWHEAD, the students found creating the newspaper informative as well as interesting. Faced with the worry of meeting deadlines, the class somehow seemed to survive, and turned out fine monthly additions.

Yearbook staffs, no matter whose or what year, have their problems. And this year's TOMAHAWK staff is no exception. The staff had problems with copy, pictures, layouts, and design. However, the staff is very pleased with this edition of the TOMAHAWK. This is Miss Strahm's second year in sponsoring the yearbook, and she has some definite plans about constructing next year's yearbook. Miss Strahm said that "yearbook work is unique in that persons learn to gather verbal and picture-sque information." Linda Whitton was this year's editor, and she has shown that she is very competent at the job. Her forceful perservance is one of the main reasons the staff met its deadlines. Sue Marquis and Tammy Hughes did an excellent job on the academics section. The credit for the activities section goes to Tom Sunday and Tom Young.

Tom Sunday and Tom Young edited activities.

Cindy Ross worked as writer and proofreader.

Yearbook staff's responsibility

TOMAHAWK editor, Linda Whitton, who was great on compromise; we did it her way!

Tammy Hughes and Sue Marquis worked on academics.

Jim McCleneghen and Jim Yarbrough did a terrific job on the sports section. The pair made an accurate and precise account of the sporting events the school participated in. Kathy Travis did the album section, in which her creativity came out in her designs of the layouts. The second period class also should be acknowledged for their help in writing the copy.

Most people don't realize the amount of time and effort that is put into a yearbook. But the yearbook staff is pleased that their efforts have produced such a fine yearbook.

The TOMAHAWK staff is hard at work.

S P O R T S

Outstanding throughout the years has been Kekionga's sports program. Much emphasis is placed upon physical fitness for both boys and girls, adding to Kekionga's well-round curriculum. Sportsmanship and challenge complete the puzzle to provide the most for those who give their best.

Kekionga's athletic program started with Cross Country coached by Mr. Smith and varsity football coached by Mr. White. Reserve football was coached by Mr. Wolford, while the 7th was coached by Mr. Billian. Basketball started with the varsity team coached by Mr. Schwartz. The reserve team was coached by Mr. Smith and the 7th by Mr. White. All three coaches tried to get it together for a winning season. Cross-Country ran seven meets in addition to the city meet which was held on October 24. The varsity team finished sixth and reserves finished seventh.

Showing the pride that made Kekionga great, our Varsity football team met with hard times. But the school spirit and the inspiration of Coach White drove the Warriors on! With many key injuries the team opened with a loss to a tough Miami team. Not being discouraged by this, the Warriors held their own against Fairfield, beating them 12 to 8. Even though the team was subjected to many defeats, they ended the season in style by beating Blackhawk, 22-0.

In their initial encounter with organized football, the seventh grade boys took the first steps in the Kekionga football program. Basic plays such as the 43-cross and 35-pitch out took many hours of hard work after school to perfect. The three game schedule against Portage, Miami, and Geyer showed improvement, but most of the year was spent learning the proper techniques of blocking and tackling.

The Girl's Basketball team pulled through the year with a 1-3 season. Even though they had a 1-3 season, they never gave up and kept on trying.

Kevin Lee stretches to sink another one.

The varsity basketball team climbed new horizons this year at Kekionga as it took on other area junior high basketball teams.

The Warriors, however, had a bad luck streak in the tournament as the final score was 49-41, with Kekionga on the short end. Coach Schwartz did an exceptionally good job in guiding our Warriors towards success and victory, as well as giving them tips that will be useful in the future. Under his leadership, the Warrior team was glad to fight for the name of Kekionga.

Reserves sink another great season

The seventh graders began learning basketball this year, being coached by Mr. White. The team played six games and finished the season with a 4-2 record.

The eighth grade basketball team was coached by Mr. Smith. The team played eleven games and lost all. They tried, though!

This year we have eleven cheerleaders, five eighth grade and five ninth grade with one ninth grade alternate. Cheerleaders attend all of the eighth and ninth grade games.

Eighth graders are chosen in their seventh grade year. They come back next fall to cheer for our teams. They also lead booster club cheers and put up signs.

A letter can be earned after accumulating a hundred points or more in the various sports offered at Kekionga, with the exception of seventh graders. The Lettermen's Club occasionally sponsors fund raising projects to pay for some of our athletic equipment. Lettermen's Club is sponsored by Mr. Schwartz.

The Girl's Volleyball team consists of eight to twelve players that will attend five games this year. The girls are picked on their ability to serve and play the ball. The girls will have a chance to win a city-wide tournament.

ALBUM

The Kekionga family gained new insight into the surrounding world, radiating new light on education and school spirit, and putting together all that makes for a great school. Seventh graders struggled for identity, while freshmen looked forward to their Trojan years and eighth graders became the completing factor of the Warrior interlocking puzzle.
